INTERIM DEVELOPMENT REVIEW PROCESS TO IMPLEMENT THE GENERAL PLAN LAND USE ELEMENT

Recommendation: It is recommended that the City Council initiate a Zoning Code Amendment to create an Interim Development Review Process, to be reviewed by the Planning Commission, to implement the land uses, floor area ratios, and residential densities of the General Plan Land Use Diagram, but subject to all other existing development standards, in exchange for a community benefit.

Recommendation of the Planning Commission: On April 27, 2016, the Planning Commission, at the direction of the City Council, discussed a potential Zoning Code Amendment to create an Interim Development Review Process. Such a discretionary process would allow development projects to utilize the land uses, floor area ratios, and residential densities of the General Plan even though they may be contrary to existing specific plan regulations. This process would be in place until such time as the Specific Plans are updated to achieve consistency with the General Plan.

The Commission supported the creation of an interim discretionary process, including public involvement, to implement the floor area ratios, land uses, and residential densities in the Land Use Element, with existing development standards or minor deviations from existing development standards.

David Reyes, Interim Director of Planning & Community Development, introduced the item, and Arthi Varma, Principal Planner, provided a PowerPoint presentation on the agenda item; and responded to questions.

Councilmember Madison was excused at 8:19 p.m. and left the meeting.

Councilmember Gordo expressed concerns with the proposed action that would allow for such land uses not otherwise permitted under the City's Specific Plans, which may have unintended consequences under SB1818 – State Density Bonus Law and cause anxiety in adjacent to single-family residential neighborhoods where development under SB 1818 could have significant impacts. In addition, Mr. Gordo stated that he believes Planned Developments should not be less than two acres and recommended that City Council not make a decision on staff's recommendation until the issue of protecting the single-family residential neighborhoods is complete and fully vetted.

Councilmember Kennedy suggested that a policy discussion and analysis on the community benefit element of staff's recommendation for the Interim Development Review Process include additional emphasis and specificity in relation to the City Council's prioritization of on-site affordable housing projects for very low, low, and moderate income projects.

Vice Mayor Masuda stated his opposition to reducing Planned Developments from two acres to one acre as part of the Interim Development Review Process, and expressed concerns with the possibility of increased density.

Councilmember McAustin spoke in support of an Interim Development Review Process that will allow staff to develop a process to review all projects for Specific Plan requirements, and addresses potential impacts of SB1818.

Mayor Tornek and Councilmember Hampton suggested that potential priority areas to be addressed by the Interim Development Review Process include the Downtown Specific Plan, and perhaps the Lincoln Avenue Specific Plan, and stated that the plan also needed amendments to encourage successful project development in those areas.

Richard A. McDonald, Pasadena resident, spoke in favor of the Planning Commission's recommendation.

Following discussion, and by consensus of the City Council, City staff was directed to return with a recommendation that reflects two important distinctions: the Interim Development Review Process would only apply to certain Specific Plan areas or priority areas, which would include a very well developed concept of the community benefits associated with such a change, and present this information to the Planning Commission for discussion prior to presenting to the City Council at a future meeting.
