At the conclusion of public comment, the Planning & Development Director clarified two points raised by various members of the public, indicating that the in lieu fee does include for very low income and is clear in the definitions; and that the ordinance includes many incentives for developers to build low cost housing. He further noted that staff continues to look at updating development/design standards.

Mr. Michael Estrada, Assistant City Attorney, responded to a question regarding the correspondence from the law firm Harding, Lamore, Kutcher & Kozal, stating staff does not see this ordinance as just an amendment to the Housing Element, but as an implementing activity. He also noted the City is currently in the process of updating its Housing Element.

Discussion ensued in which the City Manager, Mr. Estrada and Mr. Bruckner responded to questions concerning in lieu fees; the need to encourage developers to spread affordable housing throughout the city; relook at the issue of off-site construction limited to 3/4 of a mile – possibly eliminate that provision; how public projects would be affected by the proposed ordinance; the ordinance's appeal process; rehabilitation projects vs. new development; ordinance's impact on the market place; effects of the phase-in provision on developments in the pipeline; and financial impacts.

Councilmember Streater stated she was prepared to offer the ordinance, and commended staff. She acknowledged the proposed ordinance is a compromise, one tool for the City to use to begin to impact housing needs. She expressed concern why Section 8 housing does not work and what can we do as a local entity to make it work. She further stated the need to convene a forum to hear from the community as to what needs to be done to make housing programs work.

Councilmembers Holden and Gordo expressed their desire to increase the phase in from 6% to 15% and Councilmember Holden offered an amendment, seconded by Councilmember Gordo, to the ordinance that the 6% phase in would be changed to a 15% requirement with a hardship provision to allow a developer to articulate a hardship to the City Council to bring down the requirement to no less than 6%.
