Comments:

Pasadena Heritage fully supports the designations of the four historic resources before the City Council this afternoon. We have followed these projects through the Historic Preservation Commission process, and they are all historic in their own right. We would like to thank City Staff who prepared extensive and thorough reports. We would also like to congratulate the owners of these properties and recognize their dedication to historic preservation.

Comments:

I prepared the nomination on behalf of the property owners. The residence at 1145 Arden Road was historically known as the Jewett Estate, for the original owners William Kennon and Patty Stuart Jewett. It is eligible as a Historic Monument under Criterion C as exceptional in its embodiment of the distinctive characteristics of an architectural style and an exceptional representation of the work of an architect whose work is significant to the region, state, or nation. Constructed in 1915, the Jewett Estate is significant as an excellent example of the Italian Renaissance Revival style and is a superb example of the work of the architectural firm of Marston & Van Pelt. The firm was among the most prestigious in the region and influential in the development of Period Revival architecture.
