Community Service – List boards, commissions, committees and organizations on which you are currently serving or have served, offices held and in what city.

Mayor's Housing Task Force, City of Pasadena
Chair, Congregational Land Committee, Making Housing and community Happen
Elder and Former Children/Youth Coordinator, Pasadena Presbyterian Church

Employment – Title and duties, current and past as may be relevant to the above identified background/experience section.

Principal, The Arroyo Group, 2017-present

The Arroyo Group is 46-year-old urban design and planning firm birthed from the Plan for Old Pasadena (1978), a plan prepared for Pasadena Heritage which set in place the major concepts and strategy for the preservation and later revitalization of Old Pasadena into the district it is today. The Arroyo Group later prepared the initial urban design plans for the Playhouse District (1995) and the Civic Center concurrent with the replacement of the Plaza Pasadena with the Paseo Colorado (2000). Although I personally did not work on these projects, as the current leader of the firm, I am often called on to continue to bear the standard for the design heritage and intent of these districts, giving presentations and tours.

I have managed over a dozen urban design and planning projects dealing with the re-envisioning of urban areas into vibrant, sustainable, livable and equitable districts. In the typical project that I work on, I have to evaluate and synthesize inputs from engineers, transportation consultants, economic/real estate development consultants, and environmental consultants, as well as community members, other local stakeholders, City staff and elected officials.

See my professional bio attached.

Education – Include professional or vocational licenses or certificates as may be relevant to the above identified background/experience section.

B.A. Urban Studies, Brown University, 2009
Master of Planning, University of Southern California, 2015
American Institute of Certified Planners, 2017-present

What do you see as the objectives and goals of the advisory body to which you seek appointment?

The 710 Stub task force needs to take the time to explore an iterative, integrated design process for the recapture of the freeway stub into the urban fabric. Typical public decision-making processes do not allow for the kind of creative, iterative process that good urban design requires, so it will be up to the task force to be an appropriate sounding board for City staff and consultants who will develop the plans, helping shape the design process in a way that is reflective of larger constituencies in the City.

The 710 stub recapture is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for the City of Pasadena. Many demands will be made upon what should go there. The northern parts of the stub should probably function as a fifth district to Downtown Pasadena (complementing Old Pasadena, Civic Center, Playhouse Village and South Lake Avenue) and should have a identity, use mix and role distinct from those districts. The southern parts will form more of a transition between Downtown and the residential neighborhoods south and west. Among the top considerations for me are:

- A unique, activated, large urban open space amenity
- Housing, especially affordable housing
- Honoring and providing special access to communities who were displaced in the construction of the freeway

Circulation considerations, including active transportation connections to downtown/Metro and vehicular linkages to the 134/210 freeways and Huntington Hospital will also be paramount to consider.

How would you help achieve these objectives and goals?

I will bring my professional experience and goals to bear on this most important project, helping to evaluate and guide the design process in an appropriate fashion and bringing some technical rigidity to the task force.

I am also a natural consensus-builder and am familiar with working in committees, understanding the natural trade-offs between different goals. Urban design is not an "all or nothing" type of exercise, and I'll be able to help guide conversations in a way that can satisfy multiple constituencies, yet still be viable and hold to a major organizing principle that makes the district ultimately successful and a worthy addition to Pasadena's urban fabric.

Are you a descendant of a resident or community member that was displaced by the 710 or 210 Freeways? If yes, please provide any documentation that you have which demonstrates this.

AREAS OF EXPERTISE

- Bilingual community engagement and public participation
- Housing Policy
- Zoning
- Active transportation

Phillip Burns is managing principal and project manager at The Arroyo Group with experience in land use planning, housing issues, urban design and transportation planning. His specialties include community engagement and public participation (ensuring inclusive, accessible and consensus-building public processes), data analysis, active transportation and form-based codes. A former urban planning Peace Corps Volunteer and United Nations officer in Guatemala, he enjoys cross-cultural work and making abstract and counter-intuitive planning concepts understandable to the average citizen.

Possessing a variety of technical skills, Phillip often manages multidisciplinary teams and serves as primary agency point of contact for complex planning projects. He is detail-oriented, yet adept at understanding and conveying the larger picture toward which the firm's projects build.

Phillip has managed over a dozen urban design and planning projects including Specific Plans, Housing Elements, urban design plans/concepts, streetscape and public space designs, and zoning code amendments. Some of his most important experience includes:

- Metro Foothill Gold Line Extension Phase 2B First/Last Mile Planning. Phillip led this active transportation project which involved extensive coordination and negotiation between the five local city governments, Metro and the Foothill Gold Line Construction Authority. Phillip oversaw and conducted thirty outreach events which garnered comments from over 1,500 people, and guided the design process.
- Inglewood Transit-Oriented Development Plans and Housing Element. Phillip served as project planner for the development of the Downtown Inglewood and Fairview Heights TOD Plans in 2015-2016, then project manager for the subsequent Westchester/Veterans and Crenshaw/Imperial TOD Plans. Together the plans provide for 8,000 new housing units and 10,000 new jobs, and establish a new urban design framework for the four districts in relationship to the City's growing center around SoFi Stadium.
- Carson Neighborhood Mobility Area Plan. Phillip managed this project which combined land use planning, active transportation network planning, code studies, and intensive traffic modeling to develop a plan to reduce VMT in auto-oriented neighborhoods with limited public transit service. The plan is envisioned to reduce per capita VMT by 4.8% over the buildout period.
- Compton Station Specific Plan. Phillip led this effort to re-envision Downtown Compton into a vibrant downtown mixed-use district centered on the Compton Walk, a pedestrian-friendly streetscape with an ever-evolving showcase of the artistic and cultural talent present in Compton.
- Brisbane Baylands. Phillip worked on this project to plan for the recapture of 745 acres of former dump and railyard just south of San Francisco into usable open space, housing and office space.

Prior to joining The Arroyo Group, Phillip led the development of a community-driven streetscape and open space plan in Arleta and Pacoima for the City of Los Angeles Department of Recreation and Parks, where he directed eighteen educational and input-gathering workshops and focus groups in English and Spanish.

Phillip is chair of the Congregational Land Committee of Making Housing and Community Happen, a committee which provides affordable housing feasibility and visioning services to religious congregations which seek to develop affordable housing on their properties. He is a member of the City of Pasadena's Mayor's Housing Task Force. In his spare time, Phillip leads children's and youth groups at a local church. His friends know him as an avid transit advocate and rider who nevertheless loves a good road trip.

What do you see as the objectives and goals of the advisory body to which you seek appointment?

I understand the advisory body's objectives are to serve in an advisory capacity to the City Council and provide input/feedback on City's development plan and vision for the former 710 property area. The advisory body, via its representation, should have professional and/or lived expertise relevant to this vision – whether on land use, transportation, real estate development, racial equity, and/or as directly impacted community members displaced from the original 710 plans.

How would you help achieve these objectives and goals? What special qualities would you bring?

My 16+ years of professional experience has all been within the larger community development and land use sectors. As a community-based legal practitioner I have always centered the residents and community members directly impacted by planning in my process and would absolutely bring this perspective to the advisory body. I have direct professional experience reading, developing, analyzing, commenting on land use plans and policies (ranging from overarching regional and local policy planning to specific site plans) and zoning. Additionally, I have experience translating technical planning language into accessible, every day language (and vice versa – translating communities' visions into tangible land use and planning regulations and policies). My deepest expertise is in the area of affordable housing but I also have direct experience with laws and planning related to public land, public transportation, small businesses, cultural preservation, open space, and community-serving facilities. I take great pride in being a long-term resident of the City of Pasadena and am committed to shaping an equitable Pasadena – one that rectifies its past harms and ensures accessibility for all its residents. While my family was not directly impacted or displaced by the original 710 plans, as a Japanese American with connections to many other Japanese and Japanese American families in the area I do have close relationships with a number individuals whose families were displaced.

What do you see as the objectives and goals of the advisory body to which you seek appointment?

I believe the objective of this task force is to collaborate and determine the best use of this land for the City and its residents in an equitable and democratic way with the major goal of reconnecting the communities that the stub separated.

How would you help achieve these objectives and goals? What special qualities would you bring?

My academic, personal, and professional backgrounds make me an ideal candidate for this working group. I have over 10 years of professional experience working in program and project management within the public and nonprofit sectors serving special needs populations in community, economic, and housing development. As a result, I have helped connect hundreds of community members to housing services, produced research that has supported organizations in servicing thousands of residents, and analyzed data that has helped agencies garner millions of dollars in grant funding for special projects. My duties as an Analyst &

Program Specialist at the Los Angeles County Development Authority, Operations Manager at Lake Avenue Church, CEO of Pasadena Recreation & Parks Foundation, Board Member of the Pasadena Continuum of Care, and Commissioner of the Recreation and Parks Commission have included balancing an ever-changing list of responsibilities while meeting strict deadlines and requirements, pushing forward community resilience via collaboration and mediation, researching and holding firm to laws and policies, and establishing and maintaining effective relationships with constituents, staff, partners and clientele in a fast-paced environment.

As I am currently completing my Ed.D. in Organizational Leadership and Graduate Certificate in Data, Economics, and Development Policy, my dissertation focuses on the impact intersectoral collaboration has upon community resilience and health equity. Serving on the working group would be the perfect way for me to continue my tenure of leadership, innovation, and advocacy within such a diverse community. Given the opportunity, I would be a valuable asset to the group as I bring a mind eager to learn, a passion for justice that will never die out, an adaptive and collaborative leadership style, and a heart that beats to increase morale and efficacy while implementing organizational change and development of any scale.

Are you a descendant of a resident or community member that was displaced by the 710 or 210 Freeways? If yes, please provide any documentation that you have which demonstrates this.

No, I am not a descendant of a resident or community member that was displaced by the 710 or 210 Freeways.

- Participated in an intensive 10-week leadership program to prepare women for civic engagement.
- LAAAWPPI's primary mission is to provide a pipeline for women to assume leadership roles at all levels of government and public affairs, including as commissioners, elected officials, board members, community activists, corporate community and external relations, and other positions.

Neighborhood Leadership Fellow

Collaborate Pasadena

2017

- Participated in a collaborative classroom of diverse leaders with the aim of increasing community connection.
- Led campaigns around intersectoral approaches to disability rights and pre-teen academic success in the city.

Global Peacemaker Fellow

Claremont Lincoln University

2015

- At Claremont Lincoln, we know that religion can be both a source of conflict and a source of peace. Today, interfaith leaders are needed to promote just and sustainable relations between actors. Fellows will be able to move beyond interfaith dialogue to interfaith action, to put wisdom of the ages to work in the world to bring about social change and justice.
- Honored for efforts in peacebuilding, interfaith partnerships, and education.

Future 50 Leader of Religion

Interreligious Council of Los Angeles (IRC) & University of Southern California

2014

- The Interreligious Council of Los Angeles (IRC) and the University of Southern California Center for Religion and Civic Culture (CRCC) partnered to create a project celebrating IRC's nearly half-century of contributions to the dynamic religious pluralism of Southern California. This project, Future50, celebrates IRC's work by identifying and highlighting emerging faith leaders (ages 24-35) committed to the values of IRC and to building a better region for all. The final Future50 cohort was selected based on their demonstrated commitment to religious pluralism and civic engagement and their potential for future impact in these areas.
- The individuals profiled in this report are on the leading edge of the work that bridges divides, builds communities and brings our region together. They include young congregants, non-profit professionals, volunteers, board members, organizers, artists and activists. Their passions are as varied as their institutional homes, but they are knit together by the idea that their faith can inspire them to do great things for the communities in which they live, work and worship. These emerging leaders also represent the evolving face of religious pluralism and, to some degree, of religious leadership in Los Angeles.
- Honored for work in disaster response, community development, social justice and interfaith efforts.

Commitment Leader

Clinton Global Initiative University

2014 & 2017

- Selected for leading new, specific and measurable initiatives in the areas of human rights and peacebuilding.

Religions in Conversation Conference Presenter
